

Regional development and innovation in rural areas – international perspectives and local possibilities

Seminar Monday 29. October at Eastern Norway Research Institute – Storgt. 56 Lillehammer

Hosted by Eastern Norway Research Institute in cooperation with Hedmark University College and Lillehammer University College

Supported by the VRI-program, Research Council of Norway

0930 Welcome to the seminar – Morten Ørbeck, director Eastern Norway Research Institute

0945 Mike Danson, Professor at the University of the West of Scotland

Scottish regional development and the Nordic model – aspects of a fragmented economy in action

1045 Comments by Tom Johnstad, Professor at Eastern Norway Research Institute

1100 Questions - discussion

1130 Lunch

1230 Klaus Lindegaard, Associate professor at the University of Southern Denmark

Dynamics of Pheripherality

1330 Comments by Martin Rønningen, Associate professor, Lillehammer University College

1400 Break

1415 Discussion led by Peter de Souza, Associate professor, Hedmark University College.

Possible to present short papers (5 min) related to further research

1500 End of seminar